- 9.2. The Seller delivers the Goods using the services provided by the Delivery Service of the User's choice. In such a case, the goods are generally delivered under the conditions established by the Delivery Service.
- 9.3. If repeated delivery or a method of delivery different from the one specified in the order are necessary due to reasons on the side of the Buyer, the Buyer shall pay the costs of repeated delivery of the Goods or costs of depositing Goods in the warehouse or repeated delivery or a different delivery method.

- 9.4. Upon receipt of the Goods from the Delivery Service, the Buyer is obliged to check the integrity of the packaging of the Goods and immediately notify the Delivery Service of any defects. If the packaging is damaged in a way that suggests tampering with the integrity of the consignment, the Buyer may refuse to accept the consignment from the Delivery Service. This does not affect the Buyer's rights arising from liability for defects of the goods and other rights of the Buyer arising from generally binding legislation.
- 9.5. Other rights and duties of the parties related to shipping of the Goods may be regulated by additional delivery terms of the Delivery Service, where applicable.

10. RIGHTS ARISING FROM DEFECTIVE PERFORMANCE

- 10.1. The rights and obligations of the Parties regarding the rights arising from defective performance are governed by the relevant generally binding legislation (especially the provisions of S. 1914 to 1925, S. 2099 to 2117 and S. 2161 to 2174 of the Civil Code and Act No. 634/1992 Sb., regulating consumer protection, as amended).
- 10.2. The Company guarantees to the User that Goods and Services are free of defects at the point of their delivery or performance. Namely, the Company guarantees to the User that at the point of receiving the Goods and Services by the Buyer:
- (a) the Goods and Services have properties agreed by the parties, or, where there is no such agreement, that they have properties described by the Company or the manufacturer or expected by the Users with the view of nature of the Goods or Services and based on the Company's advertising,
 - (b) the Goods or Services are fit for the purpose indicated by the Company or for which such Goods or Services are generally used,
 - (c) the Goods are of corresponding quantity, measure or weight, and the Service is of adequate scope and
 - (d) the Goods or Services comply with statutory requirements.
- 10.3. If the defect becomes apparent within six months of receipt, it is considered that the Goods were defective at the time of receipt.
- 10.4. The Company has obligations from defective performance of the Goods at least to the extent of surviving obligations from defective performance of the manufacturer. The User may otherwise exercise the right arising from a defect that occurs in consumer goods within twenty-four months of receipt. If the period for which the Goods can be used is indicated on the Goods, on their packaging, in the instructions attached to the Goods or in advertising in accordance with other legal regulations, the provisions on the quality guarantee shall apply. By guaranteeing quality, the Company undertakes that the Goods will be suitable for the usual purpose for a certain period or that they will retain their usual properties. If the User has legitimately claimed the defect of the Goods with the Company, the period for exercising the rights from the defective performance or the warranty period does not run for the period during which the User cannot use the defective Goods.
- 10.5. Provisions of S. 10.4 of the Terms and Conditions do not apply to Goods or Services sold at a lower price due to a defect for which the lower price was agreed, to wear and tear caused by common use, for used Goods for defects corresponding with the degree of use or wear and tear which the Goods had prior to receipt by the Users, or where it is determined by the Goods' nature. The User does not have the right arising from defective performance if the User knew before receiving the Goods or Services that the Goods or Services had a defect, or if the User themselves caused the defect.

- 10.6. The rights arising from liability for defects of the Goods or Services must be exercised vis-à-vis the Company. However, if another person – located closer to the Company's place or the User's place – is designated for repair in the confirmation issued by the Company regarding the scope of rights from liability for defects (in the sense of the provisions of S. 2166 of the Civil Code), the User must exercise the right to repair with the person designated for performing such repair. Except in cases where a different person is designated to carry out the repair according to the previous sentence, the Company is obliged to accept complaints in any establishment where acceptance of complaints is possible with respect to the range of Goods sold or Services provided, or at the Company's registered office or place of business. The Company is obliged to issue a written confirmation to the User about when the User exercised the right, what the content of the complaint was and what method of handling the complaint the User required; and a confirmation of the date and manner of handling the complaint, including a confirmation of the repair and its duration, or a written reasoning for rejecting the complaint. This obligation also applies to other persons designated by the Company to perform the repair.
- 10.7. The User may specifically exercise the rights arising from the liability for defects of the goods, by phone at +420 732 893 893 or by e-mail at info@tele-medicine.it
- 10.8. The User must inform the Company of the selected right, doing so simultaneously with claiming the defect, or without undue delay after having claimed the defect. The User cannot change the selected choice without the consent of the Company; this does not apply if the User has requested the correction of a defect which proves to be irreparable.
- 10.9. If the Goods or a Service do not have the properties specified in S. 10.2 of the Terms and Conditions, the User may also request the supply of new Goods or a Service free from defects, unless this is unreasonable due to the nature of the defect; if the defect concerns only a part of the Goods or a part of the Service, the User may only request a replacement of the relevant part of the Goods or the Service; if this is not possible, they may withdraw from the Service Agreement or the Purchase Agreement. However, if it is disproportionate due to the nature of the defect, especially if the defect can be removed without undue delay, the User has the right to free removal of the defect. The User is entitled to the supply of new Goods or a Service, or to replacement of their part, even if the defect can be removed, provided that the User cannot use the Goods or the Service properly due to the repeated occurrence of the defect after the repair or due to a larger number of defects. In such a case, the User may also withdraw from the Service Agreement or the Purchase Agreement. If the User does not withdraw from the Service Agreement or the Purchase Agreement or does not exercise the right to the supply of new Goods or Services free from defects, the right to replacement of components or to repairing of the Goods, a reasonable discount may be requested. The User is entitled to a reasonable discount also if the Company cannot deliver new Goods or Services free from defects, replace their part or repair the Goods, as well as if the Company does not provide a remedy within a reasonable period or if arranging a remedy would cause significant difficulties to the User.
- 10.10. If a person has a right according to S. 1923 of the Civil Code, they are also entitled to reimbursement of costs expediently incurred in exercising this right. However, if the right for reimbursement is not exercised within one month from expiration of the period during which the defect must be claimed, the courts will not grant such right if the Company objects that the right to reimbursement was not exercised in time.

10.11. Further rights and obligations of the Parties related to the Seller's liability for defects may be regulated by the Seller's warranty rules.
